See what's Happening at Your Business – In Real Time

Security cameras are great for reviewing what already happened. But what if you could stop problems before they even start?

That's where Live Video Monitoring comes in.

Instead of just recording footage, this system actively watches your property using intelligent cameras and a professional monitoring center. When something unusual is detected, trained operators review the video in real time and can respond immediately.

If someone is trespassing, they can issue a warning through onsite speakers letting them know they're being watched and recorded. In many cases, that's enough to send intruders running. If necessary, local authorities can also be dispatched.
